Course Description

This course will compare the cultural heritage, religious life, political situation, identity formation and self-understanding of Jews in Europe starting in the 9th Century through today. Participants will examine the experiences of Jews throughout Europe: from Spain to Germany in the West to Russia, Hungary and Ukraine in the East and everything in between.

In this broad survey, specific attention will be paid to gender and class analysis in the approach to this material. In addition, together, we will explore the complicated history of anti-Semitism as it affected Jewish life in Central Europe as well as the numerous ways Jews flourished in Central Europe as they worked with other fringe ethnic groups.

Learning Outcomes

- Recognize the crucial features of Jewish life from its roots to today
- Have a deeper understanding of the significance of Jewish life on the development of Europe with a focus on Czech lands
- Develop a sharper eye for understanding how fringe cultures are treated the same ways over time in different cultures

Methodology

This is an active learning course involving dialogue, experiential learning around the city, group activities and reflection. It is an academic course led by an AAU professor, actor and director who will provide insights from his hands-on experience and research.
